Summary

This publication provides non-statutory guidance from the Department for Education. It has been produced to help teachers and teaching staff in schools, colleges and FE providers with sources of mental health and wellbeing support to assist them to get the help and support they may need in response to any feelings they are experiencing as a result of COVID-19.

We know that children and young people may be experiencing a variety of feelings in response to the COVID-19 outbreak such as anxiety, stress or low mood. It is important to understand that these are normal responses to an abnormal situation. We have put together some useful links and sources of support to help teachers and teaching staff to assist children and young people so that they can get the advice and help they need.

We have also developed a list for you to provide children and young people with sources of support to assist them to get the help they may need in response to any feelings they are experiencing due to COVID-19. You can adapt this list to suit individual needs.

Mental health and wellbeing resources for teachers and teaching staff

Many children and young people may be experiencing a variety of emotions in response to the COVID-19 outbreak such as anxiety, stress or low mood, and we know that during the pandemic, education staff have been doing all they can to support their pupils' and students' mental health and wellbeing.

To help staff navigate the resources available to them, we have pulled together some useful links and sources of support to ensure their pupils' and students' get the advice and help they need. We have also provided a list of resources for you to pass on to your pupils and students to enable them to seek support on a range of issues independently if they would like to. You can adapt this list to suit individual needs and put it into your own school or college template so it's in a format pupils and students are used to.

Teachers and teaching staff should also prioritise looking after your own wellbeing and mental health. Every Mind Matters campaign self-care tool offers free online action plan, approved by the NHS, that offers simple steps you can take to care for your own mental health. The tool can help to deal with stress and anxiety, boost mood, improve sleep quality and take control of your wellbeing.

Schools are encouraged to continue referring to their local children and young people's mental health services (CYPMHS) where needed. CYPMHS are continuing to operate and in many cases are providing support remotely. Children and young people or their parents or carers can also contact their GP or refer to NHS 111 online. Local CYPMH services will also have information on access on their websites, many offer self-referral or single points of access.

Please note, the resources listed below and any associated products have not been produced or quality assured by DfE. Schools should always assess resources produced by external agencies carefully to ensure they are factually accurate, age appropriate, and in line with your school's legal duties in relation to political impartiality.
